Q: PHP MYSQL Connecting via class no array I am creating my own class for sending emails and there is one thing I am having some trouble with. When sending an email, the php needs a $_GET value in order to work. If I use a $_GET variable, I will have to use an array, but I would like the option of using a page that only returns the $_GET info and stores it in a database. So my question is, is there a way to have the $_GET data a page can be created that can store the variable in a database without using an array? Thanks.

$sql = "SELECT from";
$where['content']="$_GET['msg']."; echo $sql; echo $where['content'].";
//$this->update($sql,$where); $this->conn = $this->_dbh = new PDO('mysql:host=localhost;dbname=mail', 'root', 'root', array( PDO::ATTR_ERRMODE => PDO::ERRMODE_EXCEPTION )); This will print out the following: SELECT from $_GET['msg'] And my error message is: Fatal error: Call to a member function prepare() on a non-object in /var/www/html/mailer.php on line 23 A: Unfortunately, this is what every form has to do: $sql = "SELECT * from"; $where['content']=$_POST['msg']; echo $sql; echo $where['content']."; //$this->update($sql,$where); $this->conn = $this->_dbh = new PDO('mysql:host
